

Mackanese: The Universal Second Language

Mackanese is a new and creative sign language, which can be easily learned and then used to communicate with others. Since it is not based on any one culture or existing language and is a blend of signs and gestures, its very intuitive to learn making it a perfect solution to many communication challenges. Whether its used by families with autistic challenges, stroke victims or in a foreign country, we feel it will help bridge the communication gap in all situations: travel and leisure, business and especially humanitarian relief.
