

Be good, be clear, be unforgettable...Everyone knows that presentations matter. They make or break ideas and careers. They change minds. They can enhance or destroy value - yours and your companys. But the corporate world is suffering from presentation overload: too many, too dull and too long. It has never been more important to learn the art of commanding attention, of getting your message across so that people remember it - and you. There are hundreds of how to books on presentations. Many of them are written by people who may have presented in the past (or may not) but who werent necessarily very good at it. This book is different. This book is by the experts, the authors are presentation consultants to the cream of UK companies. Expect ideas, stimulation and tips to make you truly memorable for all the right reasons.
